

The Vicious Credit Returns Cycle

Sending surplus product back for credit and using that credit to purchase additional goods is the easiest thing in the world – to get wrong.

Customer satisfaction surveys are full of horror stories about credits management and with the help of the following diagram you can see why.

One of the key benefits of Stocklink returns management will be the opportunity we create for our clients to consistently perform well in this area for their customers.

Does this cycle look familiar to you?

